

BOEING 737 FIELD RECOVERY, CONAKRY, GUINEA

The aircraft overran its runway and landed in a field where it was stranded, unresolved for three months. SOAR was contacted and the recovery was completed in two days without secondary damage.

Project scope included lifting the plane using air bags and extending the landing gear in order to tow the aircraft back to the tarmac on its own gear for an extensive damage evaluation.

For a graphic presentation of this repair please visit: www.sourceoneaircraftrepair.com.